Special contracts will be made with yearly advertisers. The Late M. H. Wells.

A daik cloud hangs over cur communit; a sad calamity has overtaken us. Death has removed from us one whose place cannot well be filled. All that remains of the bidy of M. H. Wells rests now under the soc; bis spirit bas passed over the dark river, and in that oternal baven of rest and joy it has found that which earth can never afford, unending rest and immortal joy. The funeral took place to day, and was the largest that has occurred here for many years. The church, Dancan Chapel, of which Mr. Wells was a leading member, was filled with a congregation of friends of the deceased, from all parts of our county. The re mains were met at the church door by the children of the Sunday School, of which Mr. Wells had log been superintendent. The pull bearers were: Thomas Moore, J. R. Taylor, D. M. Chiebester, Henry M. Fairfax, R. R. Farr and F. P. Berkley. After the remains were placed in front of the chancel, the choir, composed of the members of the Methodist and Episcopal Churches, sung "Nearer my God to Thee." Rev. H. P. Hamill, the paster, read the burial service, af-Dr. Tutt-Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspousia, Constipation and Piles Last Spring your Pils were recommended to me; I used them (but with little faith.) I ter which he preached a serm in of deep solemo. ity. He referred to the Christian character of the deceased in a most touching manner; it was a sermon elequent with truth and emotion. R.v. George H. Williams closed the services by prayer. As the words came warm and deep from his heart the sobs of friends and relatives were heard throughout the congregation. It was a most solemn hour-a community felt ite tose, and our hearts were made teader by the words we had beard. As the procession left the church the bell in the court house steeple was tolled, and the some was one long to be remembered. As the grave Mr. Hamill concluded the services, and the choir surg "Asleep in Jesus." As the voices fleated out upon the warm summer air, all nature teeming with life, the words floated up and were lost, but the echo scunded deep into our hearts, for wa knew that our departed brother heard the harpers' music which came from the city to which he had gone.

M. H. Wells was a man whose heart was large enough to feel for every one whom he knew. No one ever came to him is need of enouragement or he'p but who went away satisfied. His life was a sucre-s; as a friend be was true; as a husband and father he was off o tionate and kind; as a soldier be was brave; and as a Christian he was sigoere, devoted and faithful. Though he has gone he left his family and friends a rich legacy-an unblemished character and triomphant death. His religious faith though tried severaly never lost its brightness; his bope nev r waned, and just before dying he said, "Tell them at home I died in the faith?"
Death loses its gloom and clouds when such faith shines about one's death bed. Though he was far from beme he was tenderly cared for by loving friends. His wife and several relatives were with him and he died surrounded by every thing conducted to his relief and comfort. To his wife and family a community extends a sincere sympathy; to his children he has left a precious memory, and to us, his friends, he leaves an example worthy of our highes; aims. May that hand which was extended to sorrowing ones when God was manifest in the flish be now extended to those who sit in sorrow at the death of this servant of God; may the consolations of a Divine Pay-ician pour oil into the wounded hearts, and though it may be dark just now, may the thought of the coming dawn brighten and cheor those who six in dark-

FAIRFAX C. H., VA., Aug. 5, 1879. A FRIEND. FAIRFAX, C. H., Va., August 6, 1879 .-Never did the heart of a people beat more gen erally in sympathy with a heart broken widow and bereaved children and friends than did the heart of our entire community with the wife and little children of the late M. H. Wells, on the occassion of his funeral, which took place yesterday, at 10 a. m., from the Mathodist church, Sou h, in this village. No such numerously attended and solemn services have ever been knows in this place. It was most meet that his funeral should have taken place in the house he had labored most z :alously and contributed most liberally in erecting, and with which his name is and must be ever assec'ated; for well may it be said in this case, his "works do follow him". The funeral services was conducted by the R.v. Mr. Hamid, the pastor, assisted by the R.v. George H. Williams. The Methodist and Episcopal choirs joined in the solemn services, and indeed, for the time, all united in one courch, one people, without distinction, in paying respect to him, who had so indentified himself with every good work calculated to advance the interest of both church and state. His life was and is, his own best eu ogy. His faults, if any, all, will torger; bis virtues will be remembered and serve as an example worth of imitation. With A GEORGIA LAKE DRYING UP .- Reports of the sicking condition of the Ochtahachee lake induced a party from Valdosta to go out there a few days since for the purpose of catching some of the fish before the water was all gone. By I o'clock at night 2 000 trout, bream and speckled perch had been caught. The Valdosta l'imes says that if the recent rains do not stop the underflow of the lake in a few mers days the fish and water will be down into a small compass and then it will be hard to puil out all the fish one haul of the seroe wil take in. It has known thousands to be caught there betore in one hauland trout weighing 16 pounds in the lot.
